Q.1: Projects are ubiquitous and have shaped the face of human civilization since antiquity. In Pakistan, the 21st century has been dubbed by some as the “century of projects”. And as developmental challenges, science and technology and knowledge relentlessly advance, projects – and a profound insight into how to manage them effectively and efficiently - will become all the more relevant with the passage of time. How would you express the significance of project management in Pakistan? Explain the advantages of Project management with examples detail.

Q.2: Cross-border transfer of organizational knowledge is most effective in terms of both velocity and viscosity; sometimes the type of knowledge (i.e., human, social, or structured) being transferred can be simple, explicit, and independent and sometimes such transfers involve similar cultural contexts. Elaborate some essential difference between Western and non-Western societies, which are to be kept in consideration, while dealing with projects.

Q.3: Project management is considered key tool for implementing strategy. In working with organizations large and small, in the public and private sectors, in Pakistan and overseas, in manufacturing sites and corporate headquarters, and in strategic and operational project situations, there are some essential conditions for project success. Elaborate some of them in detail.
